Patterson Claims Narrow Margin in Race for Finance Job.

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21.—
With the solid support of 90 percent of the Walton forces, and the backing of the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction league, O. A. Cargill won the democratic nomination for mayor with a lead of 3,947. His total vote in all wards was 8,930
votes, while Dan Lackey ran a poor third with 1,779 votes. The total democratic vote for mayor was 15-491 votes, and the total vote for the city, 16,557 votes.

Allen Street at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, conceded his defeat with good grace.

"We're a long way behind; of course I'll concede it," he declared,
"I would like to thank those who worked so faithfully for me, and I am sure democracy will triumph."

C. J. Blinn was in Cargill headquarters before 10 o'clock and offered his aid in the general election.

Dan V. Lackey declared he had no statement to make about the election at any time and that he would say nothing. Warren Gill
could not be found.

Joe Patterson is the democratic nominee for commissioner of public property, according to complete, unofficial figures. He defeated John W. Nicely, the Farmer-Labor league candidate, by 300 votes.

William F. Vahlberg won the nomination for commissioner of finance and accounting, by 2,022 votes
over Joe O'Brien, his nearest opponent.

Patterson Closely Run
The silent vote won the nomination for Joe Patterson, his lead of 1,656 votes in the first ward carrying him to victory with an even 300 votes margin. The race in the second ward was more hotly contested than in any other. Patterson winning by thirty votes.

Nicely carried the third ward by 241 votes, and more than doubled
Patterson's votes in the fourth ward carrying it by 1,856 votes to Patterson's even 900.

The final vote in the race for commissioner of public property
stands Nicely 7,107; Patterson 7-407; Booth 343 and Phillips 494.

Strolog in First
In the first ward, Nicely received 1,987 votes, Patterson 3,554, Booth 124 and Phillips 163. In the second ward the vote was Nicely
1,507; Patterson 1,538; Booth 70,
and Phillips 56. The third ward shows Nicely 1,745; Patterson 1-504; Booth 105; Phillips 107,
while in the fourth ward, the vote
is Nicely 1,856; Patterson 900;
Booth 44 and Phillips 78.

Vahlberg's lead in the race for commissioner of finance and accounting was obtained almost entirely in the first and fourth wards.
He won by 2,002 votes over Joe O'Brien, his nearest opponent.

He carried every ward, however.
The union labor vote was badly
split in the third and fourth wards,
where O'Brien had counted on a unified stand. In the first ward, the vote was lighter than for any other race.

KEENAN MURDER STILL MYSTERY

Chicago Man Denies Part in Mystery of New York
Actress' Death.

(By the Associated Press)
New York, March 21.—The murder of Dorothy Keenan, known as Dorothy King, who was chloroformed
in her apartment last Thursday, is still a mystery today with the police admitting that they are no
nearer a solution.

Inspector Coughlin was expecting
information today from Chicago
about Jack Lannigan, who was a friend of Miss Keenan and knows most of her acquaintances. He was formerly the owner of a cabaret on Broadway.

Police heard that he had been here from Chicago two weeks ago
and after quarreling with Miss Keenan, left in a huff. The inspector said he was trying to find
what the quarrel was about.

CHICAGO, March 21.—Jack Lannigan, former friend of Dorothy Keenan, today categorically denied that he had a quarrel with
the slain woman, three weeks ago,
as believed by the New York police. Lannigan said he had not been questioned by the Chicago police,
but that he had nothing to conceal.

LEGION PREPARED TO PRESENT PLAY AGAIN

Encouraged by their success on their first presentation, the Norman Howard post, American Legion will again show their play, "The Girl From Out Yonder," Thursday
evening at the McSwain theatre.

So complete was every detail in the presentation last Thursday at the McSwain, Legion officials declared that the play should not escape the public without being given a second opportunity, weather conditions preventing a large crowd
at the first show.

While ticket sales have not been promising, Legionnaires are not working to this end for their second show, since no seats will be reserved.

Those in charge assure theatre-
goers that no effort will be lacking
in making the second show as complete in every detail as the first.

Proceeds of the ticket sales will go toward a $3,000 fund for the furnishing of the Legion quarters
in the new memorial hall which will be completed this summer.

WALLACE URGES MORE HELP FOR STATE FARMERS

Agriculture Secretary Points
Out Congressional Relief
by Congress

ADDRESSES SOLONS

Senate Prepares to Tighten Purse Strings After House Action.

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21.—
Passage of "helpful legislation" to benefit farmers was urged by Secretary of Agriculture H. C. Wallace in an address here today before a joint session of the legislature.

The agriculture secretary described the work of his department
and stressed the necessity for cooperation with state boards of agriculture and various agricultural agencies. He praised the national administration for the aid has been extended farmers through legislation.

Wallace pointed out four acts of the 67th congress that he considered of prime importance to the farmers. These are as follows:

Revival of the war finance corporation; placing a farmer on the federal reserve bank board; passage of the packer and stockyard
law; passage of the agricultural credits act.

John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture was exalted by the speaker for his work
in promoting the welfare of the farmers and for his contributions towards raising the agricultural standard in Oklahoma.

At the close of Secretary Wallace's address Senator J. W. Harrell spoke briefly, advising the farmers to make sparing use of the rural credits in prosperous years, as the act is designed to extend aid in years of depression.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21.—
The senate prepared today to tighten up on the purse strings of the state by an attack on the $16,400-000 institutional appropriation bill
sent over from the house yesterday.

The first three sections of the bill were reduced $1,628,066.39. If this ratio is maintained, the total cut will approximate $4,000,000 is
was pointed out.

The lower house today passed overwhelmingly Senate Bill No. 340 granting more power to the personnel of the highway department and laying the ground work for a more effective organization of the department. The third reading of the bill was dispensed with and the vote on the measure was 86 to 1.

The lone member voting in the negative was Representative Pollock
or Carter county.

The measure was amended yesterday so as to permit the county commissioners to retain the right to award contracts for road work in their respective counties.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21.—
John Goble of Guthrie, chairman
of the senate building committee, reported favorably today a bill by Senator Ross Lillard of Oklahoma City to provide Gov. Walton with an executive mansion.

The appropriation was raised from $75,000 to $100,000. The bill lo-cates the mansion in the middle of a block just west of the capitol.

Protest Made on Senate Measure
on Road Issues

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 21.—
Telegrams calling for an immediate meeting to protest against senate
bill No. 340, the highway measure, were sent today by Ed S. Butterfield, chairman of the board of county commissioners of Oklahoma
county, to each of the 231 county
commissioners in the state.

In explaining the call Butterfield
said that passage of the bill would take out of the hands of the commissioners and centralize in the highway department control of the roads. The highway commissioner, he pointed out, is an appointive officer. He said if the bill becomes a law suits will be brought by county commissioners against the highway commissioner and that millions of dollars of road construction will be held up.

Big Kick in Legion Plan For Cabaret

The soothing enchantment of jazz music, the picturesque setting of "old Paree," the general atmosphere of a cabaret even the soft drink, will be a feature unparalleled
in the history of Legion entertainments.

This pleasant on old Paree will be revived again here at the city hall March 29, when the Legion stages their novel entertainment of the year, a cabaret dance.

An out-of-town kick will accompany this well-known relief for tired
business men. Three entertainers have been employed at an Oklahoma City theatrical agency and will lend their part in stirring up the monotony of every day life.

Every detail will be complete;
tables for two; excellent cafe service; specialty dances by professional entertainers between numbers; the announcer.

Legionnaires maintain that there will be a hot time in the old town
that night.

PEACE AGAIN IN CHURCHYARD ROW

Armed Guards Pace Time on Property of Two Interests.

(By the Associated Press)
TONKAWA, Okla., March 21.—
Peace reigned today at Prairie View church yard where the storm created yesterday by the circulation of false reports to the effect that two men had been killed in a fight in the church yard.

The report of the clash was due to a telephone call to the sheriff of Kay county early yesterday and a message to a Tulsa oil concern that one of its scouts had been injured.

An armed truce is being maintained between the two opposing parties pending a court decision on the right of Charles E. Knox of Enid to drill a well on a portion of the church yard leased by him.

A guard of 20 men armed with guns and clubs stationed in the church yard for more than a week
to prevent Knox from proceeding
with his preparations for sinking
a well was reduced to five yester-
day.

Stationed across the road is Knox's patrol of equal strength.

Knox leased a portion of the church yard for drilling from the state organization of the United Brethren church. The church cemetery association contends that the United Brethren church authorities
had no power to grant the lease.

They declared that the cemetery
in which the bodies of their relatives is buried would be desecrated
by drilling on this location.

Knox contends that his location
would not violate the cemetery portion of the church yard.

OPTIMISM SEEN AT FORUM MEET OF ADA LEADERS

Harrell Makes Detailed Report
on Water Situation
for Ada.

EMRY IS SPEAKER

State Chamber of Commerce
Speaker Urges More Development.

Outstanding features of the meeting of the Forum of the Ada Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening were addresses by Lowery H.
Harrell and Roy L. Emry, executive secretary of the State Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Harrell's talk was in the nature of a report by a committee appointed by the Lion's club to investigate the facts of the water situation and the cost of the proposed new system. He made the report without argument or comment and then replied to a number of questions by persons, who desired light
on some of the details.

According to the committee's report, the city is now using between 800,000 and 900,000 gallons of water daily and during the coming summer this is expected to reach at least 1,250,000. It is going to be next to impossible to supply that amount of water, even if all goes well with the present line.

A line either 24 or 30 inches in diameter would provide an ample supply until the city has reached 40,000 or 50,000 population. By a slight raise and readjustment of rates the system could be made to pay itself out, providing ample revenue to meet the interest and sinking fund requirements.

Emry Speaks on Development.
Mr. Emry spoke of the organization and methods of work for a chamber of commerce. Oklahoma, he said, is far behind in the matter of developing her natural resources. Although this is the only state in the Union with such varied resources that a wall could be built around it and the people still supply every need. The value of farm products is only one-fourth of the total for the United States,
and the livestock is only one-sixtieth of the total produced in the United States. It is part of the work of a commercial body to give all possible aid in developing these resources. He went into some detail
in the matter of an effective organization.

When the meeting was thrown open for general discussion W. C.
Duncan called attention to the plight of the farmers of this section and said that he would favor
a law under which a man in town
who owned a farm would be forced to put such improvements on the place as would enable the tenant
to get away from the one crop system or else be taxed higher on the property. He wanted to see the farmers prosper and thought that only in getting away from the one crop idea could this be possible.

Dr. Ed Granger was inclined to agree with Mr. Duncan and suggested that every land owner
should by all means make it possible for the tenant to raise a bunch of hogs.

Hill Makes Report.
Some one brought up the question of the creamery and J. B. Hill was called on for a report. He said that there has been a great change
in the county during the past few years and that the production and sale of cream has grown rapidly.

He said he had been in correspondence with parties in various places
regarding more cows and that the bankers of the county are agreed
on the proposition that the farmers who want more cows should be given a chance to get them.

One bank at Roff, he said, has during the past year or two shipped in and sold to the farmers five cars of gold cows.

C. V. Gowing reported that the prospects is bright for securing another glass factory. He stated that having investigated the project now
in hand he considered it a good
one. The final outcome will be known in a short time.

Cane manufacturers are using apple wood to a great extent in the

HOUSE OF DAVID CULT ON TRIAL

Testimony Before Court Will Bring Out Moral Conditions.

(By the Associated Press)
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 21.—Instead of an early conclusion
of the hearing in federal court
here of the suit of John Hansell against the Israelite House of David
the taking of testimony was lengthened today by a ruling of the court
what evidence might be introduced concerning the moral conditions
within the Benton Harbor colony.

Following the ruling only two witnesses for the plaintiff were heard yesterday. The attorney for the defense intimated that with the field of testimony opened by the ruling that it would not be covered by both sides short of three weeks, and perhaps not in that time. The testimony would be such, the defense said, that the
"truth would not appear."

Walter Nelson, attorney for the plaintiff, succeeded in opening up
the question of moral conditions
in order to show that prospective
members were deceived on this point.
Hansell seeks to recover $80,000
alleged to be due for labor and property turned over to the cult.

He was expelled from the cult but
his property was not returned.

The court ordered night sessions
which will begin tonight in an endeavor to speed up the proceedings.

HARDING TO BE G.O.P. CANDIDATE FOR 1924

(By the Associated Press)
MIAMI, Fla., March 21.—The public is "tired of the political talk of the last several months," according to Attorney General Daugherty, who declared again that President Harding will be the Republican nominee without contest in 1924. Mr. Daugherty said last night in commenting on his previous declaration that Harding would be the party candidate in 1924, that there would be no change in the planks of the Republican platform
and that the coming race would be based on the untangling of the complicated war problems, reduction of expenditures and lessening of tax
burdens.

Daugherty said he took all responsibility for the announcement that the president would again run
for the office, and that he had no
"special authority from the president" to make it, but that he believed the country would demand
his re-election.

PIUTE INDIANS ON WARPATH IN UTAH MOUNTAINS

Posse on Trail of Indians Who Created Outbreak at Utah Town.

OFFICERS DEFIED

Arrest of Indian Boy is Cause of Hostilities Between Factions.

(By the Associated Press)
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 21.—A posse of San Juan county citizens is reported hot upon the trail of a band of renegade Piute
Indians who figured in an outbreak
in Blanding Monday evening.

The Indians causing the trouble,
according to the report received by United States Marshall Ward, number upwards of 12.

In a clash late yesterday between
the posse and the warring redskins,
one young buck, known as Joe Bishop's boy, was reported killed and two other Indians wounded. So far as can be learned, the whites
suffered no casualties.

The trouble at Blanding started Monday after authorities had brought to trial Joe Bishop's boy
and another young Indian charged with the robbery of a camp of settlers. Just before the trial had opened a band of young Indians entered the town and started making trouble.

Over Indian's Arrest
Joe Bishop's boy and the other young buck, who were found guilty escaped from Sheriff Oliver when he went to bring them their supper.

The sheriff with pointed gun attempted to make them eat but they succeeded in knocking the weapon
from his hand and overpowering him.

When the escape was learned a posse of settlers was quickly formed and went in pursuit. There is but one telephone line into Blanding and having cut this the Indians isolated the town from the outside world. Efforts to establish radio communication with Blanding
from Salt Lake City last night
ended in failure.

Old Posey, an aged Indian who was a leading figure in trouble of past years, is said to be taking part in the present affair.

The Piute Indians in the San Juan section have always resented the coming of white settlers and from time to time disturbances have occurred. As San Juan county is very mountainous, the pursuit of the renegade Indians is dangerous, especially as they are well armed with high powered rifles and are said to have caches of ammunition stored away. Once the Indians gain their mountain haunts it will be most difficult, if not impossible, to dislodge them.

OLD IDEA IN NEW DRESS.

It is said there is nothing new under the sun, but we some times doubt this. Original ideas are few and far between. Even Shakespeare, whose plays yet thrill humanity, actually had few original ideas. He purloined most of them from other and almost unknown authors. Originality in writing is generally credited to a person if he expresses an old idea in a new form.

We have been talking service so long that some of us sometimes wonder what it means. We ran across this little paragraph in "Lions Club Magazine" which is worthy of being passed on. The idea is not new but the dress is. Watch the figures of speech.

"We are all just common, ordinary human beings, traveling along the same road of life, toward the same goal. The enjoyment that we derive upon our travels, the ease with which we travel, depends upon how much of a road-hog we are; whether we spend our time in crowding our fellow men off into the rough byways and ruts and thorns of difficulty and discouragement and in our selfish greed to pass our fellow man, stir up the dust of contention and discord. If as friends we travel along together sociably and in a spirit of service and friendship, ready to share our gas with the man whose supply has been exhausted in climbing the hills of difficulty, and help another to repair his tire punctured by the nails of criticism, and pull another out of the mire of discouragement, then we will all make rapid progress and reach our goal with a minimum of effort and a maximum of pleasure and accomplishment and in a shorter time and be ready to start on again."

MORE INDUSTRIES.

Never, it seems to us, did Ada have as bright outlook for growing into a city as it has now. Having watched and taken part in the development of the place for many years, we have always felt that it was certain to become a large city.

This belief was not founded and is not now founded on the great abundance of natural resources here, though these will help of course. That belief was based upon the citizenship and the co-operation always shown by those who do things.

Cities are not made by natural resources. Cities are made by men. Ada is particularly fortunate, however, in not only having the men but in having the resources as well.

It would appear now that before this year has closed, several industries will either be building or be ready for use. But let us not be content with well doing. Eternal vigilance and work constitute the price of building cities.

Tuesday evening's session of the Forum of the Chamber of Commerce may well be termed everybody's meeting, a wide variety of subjects being discussed. The attendance was not particularly large but most of the live wires and old standbys were there as full of enthusiasm and confidence in the future of Ada as ever. It was the crowd, or the greater part of it, that has gone the limit in putting Ada on the map. Of course some of the dependable ones were absent through no fault of their own, but it would have been worth their while if many who never attend a meeting of the kind should have attended and make it a practice to attend. A great deal of unjust criticism results from incomplete information. Perhaps the critics mean well but are misled through lack of knowledge of the facts. It will be a great day for Ada when these meetings are attended by hundreds instead of a few dozen.

Perhaps it is very well to seek the most effective methods of imparting knowledge to pupils in our schools, but is it wise for the teacher to undertake to do all the work while the pupils look on? The ancient educator uttered a great truth when he assured a prince who did not like the irksomeness of digging out hard problems that there is no royal road to an education. No man worth while looks upon work as a curse to the human race and a very good time to impress a future citizen with the idea work is the greatest thing in the world is the school room by insisting that he get down and delve for himself into the mines of knowledge, instead of expecting his instructors to do the digging and presenting him with the nuggets found in the digging process. The nuggets will be more highly prized if the student digs it for himself for it is then a souvenir of efforts well put forth.

It is reported that the Kaiser's book has had such a poor run in Germany that the price has been cut in half in an endeavor to increase the sales. Pretty good evidence that the Germans have really had enough of their former master. Perhaps by this time Wilhelm has taken the hint.

Roy Mitchell, the negro on trial for various murders, has just been given a second death sentence. If both sentences stand up on appeal, it is quite evident that the sheriff will have to return one unexecuted.

According to the calendar this is the first day of spring, but the weather bureau says look out for a cold wave with probably rain or snow. Some mixup we're having.

ONE THING ALL THE FRENCH ARMY AND NAVY CAN'T BLOCKADE

The Forum of the Press

A Montana Mental Giant
(Detroit News)

There is high romance in the history of almost any invention. There is an incalculable fascination in the picture of Edison beneath the midnight lamp with his first crude talking machine. The story of Fulton is one of which every defeat and victory common to existence is somewhere included and the experiments of the young Marconi read like fiction. Stephenson was ordinarily regarded in his time as something of a reincarnated wizard.

Why are not business inventions similarly romantic in birth? For example here is a man in Missoula, Mont., who has thought up a simply astonishing scheme. Mail order houses sell much merchandise in the district. These goods are ordered from catalogues. Therefore, some ingenious citizen conceived the plan of having children admitted to movies free, provided they presented a mail-order catalogue at the door. Then these ponderous volumes were destroyed and presently becomes as rare as the bison that formerly roamed the district, and the local merchant waxed exceedingly prosperous.

The Federal Trade Commission has just condemned the practice. The commission is concerned only with its iniquities as business. Most of us are more intrigued with the identity of the business Edison who originated the perfectly gorgeous idea. What is his name, where is his laboratory, how many years of defeat preceded success, did he feel exultant when he finally struck the One Great Scheme? The go-getter magazines should go get the gentleman's story.

The Banker-Farmer Conference

(Fort Worth Star-Telegram)

The annual banker-farmer conference at the Texas A. & M. College is now in session, and problems connected with the financing and improvement of agriculture are being discussed. It can be safely said that much profitable result will come from the gathering and that further progress toward placing agriculture in Texas on a sound business basis will be made.

There are few things so significant among the developments of the after-the-war period as the growing recognition on both sides of the community of interests between the bankers and the farmers of the State. The average banker is coming to see that nothing is so important to him and to his business as the prosperity of the farmers of his neighborhood and of the entire State, and the farmer is coming to understand that due to this fact, the intelligent banker can be depended upon to co-operate with him in anything that makes for his prosperity.

This community of interest is so widely recognized now, and it is so widely understood that the prosperity of everybody in the State is more or less connected with the prosperity of the farmer, that it is hard to realize that there was a time when people believed anything else. But it is not so many years ago that the popular idea was quite the opposite, and when most of the bankers and the farmers alike failed to appreciate the full force of the economic law which links their interests together. The banker-farmer conference originated in a recognition of this economic law, and it is doing very effective work from year to year in promoting the prosperity of the State.

NEW COURTS FOR RUSSIAN PEOPLE

New and Permanent System Puts End to Reign of Terror in Russia.

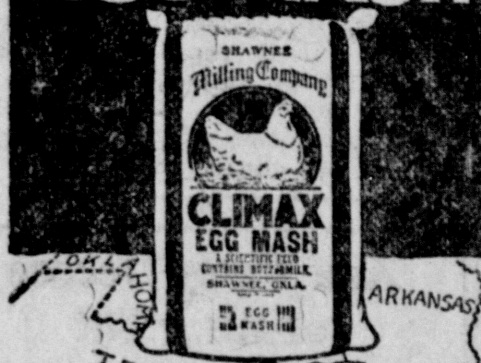

(By the Associated Press)

MOSCOW.—The revolutionary tribunals which, along with the dreaded "Cheka," were instruments of red terror during the worst period of the Bolshevik revolution, passed into history the other day when a new and permanent court system was inaugurated throughout Russia. While founded upon lines not unlike those of the court systems of some other European countries, the new Russian courts have some particularly communistic features all their own.

The Supreme Court of Russia, which will sit in Moscow, will have three branches. One will be for criminal cases, one for civil and the other a court of appeals. There will be also district courts to try cases of local importance, and the "Peoples' Courts," corresponding to police magistrates, will operate in each village and city district to try minor offenses.

Peter Stuchka, Lett's lawyer who gained fame as the Bolshevik defender of Latvia when Riga was in the hands of the communists, has been named as chairman of the Supreme Court. Another Lett, M. Karklin, will be his assistant. In the criminal, civil and appeal branches, however, the supreme court judges are mostly men who served in responsible positions on the revolutionary tribunals, all communists tried and true. Jacob Peters, who headed the "Cheka" at Petrograd during the red terror, is one of the judges of the criminal department.

M. Kursky, Commissar of Justice, will be chief procurator or attorney general in the new court system, but the active prosecutor will be Vladimir Krylenko, formerly chairman of the revolutionary tribunals.

A peculiar feature of the new system is that a species of "juror" is introduced. There will be two of them in each case sitting beside the judge and having full powers to question witnesses and attorneys. They will retire with the judge to decide upon the guilt or innocence of the accused, a majority vote of the three serving to convict or free the prisoner. Panels of these prospective jurors are now being selected throughout Russia. The various trades unions and professional organizations select them from their own numbers, and they must be ready to go into court at any time they are called upon. The Moscow quota of jurors is 4,000. When they sit in trials the jurymen are paid, not by the government, but by their employers, receiving

WIDNEY HONORED WITH LUNCHEON AT NORRIS HOME

Immediately following the ordination of Mr. Chas. L. Widney to the ministry of the Episcopal Church at St. Luke's church Tuesday morning the members of the church gave a luncheon in his honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Norris. To this luncheon Bishop Thurston extended an invitation to everyone in the congregation. Cars were provided for all the guests and Mrs. Norris, Mrs. T. B. Blake and Mrs. Calhoun Sparks received them at the door.

For this occasion this spacious home gave an ample setting charming to the eye. Blooming begonias in a delicate pink were everywhere in profusion. On the serving table in the living room was a handsome basket of lilacs, pink carnations and pink tulle sent to Mr. Widney by the Holdenville church which he also served.

In the dining room the table was set for seventeen and laid with shiny lace doilies. Mr. Widney, his father and sister, Bishop Thurston, the visiting clergy and the wives of two, who attended the local clergy and Mr. Norris were seated. The other guests were seated at eight small tables in the living room, these, too, were laid with handsome linens.

The ladies of the church served the two course luncheon, consisting of chicken croquettes, peas, baked ham, Boston baked beans, potato salad, hot rolls, coffee and ice cream and caramel cake.

Following the luncheon Bishop Thurston in his inimitable way reiterated his pleasure in the occasion because of the good will and Christian fellowship of which it was an open expression. Rev. J. H. Ball pastor of the First Methodist church at Ada followed him and concurred in a most happy manner in what Bishop Thurston had expressed. Rev. Mr. Toothaker, rector of St. Luke's at Chickasha told of his enjoyment in the event. Mr. Widney having been at one time a communicant of that church and made a deacon there the past year.

Mrs. L. C. Lawson of Holdenville expressed, for the Holdenville members, a most gracious appreciation of Mr. Widney and their delight in being present and sharing in the eventful occasions.

The guests dispersed soon after, nearly all the out of town visitors leaving at once for their homes by cars or the trains.

The occasion will linger long in the memory of all present.

Those present were Rev. Mr. Chas. L. Widney, Mr. C. L. Widney of Dallas, Miss Celeste Widney of Dallas, Bishop Theodore Payne Thurston of Oklahoma City, Rev. Franklin Davis of Oklahoma City, Rev. Jno. Gardner of El Reno, Rev. Dwight Graham of Shawnee, Rev. and Mrs. Isaac Parkin of Coalgate, Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Smith of McAlester, Rev. H. E. Toothaker, M. D. of Chickasha, Rev. J. E. He contemplated Mr. Rivington with wondering interest.

"Mr. Spencer," he said, "is indeed fortunate in his uncle."

"I would rather say that I'm fortunate in my nephew," replied Rivington. "Billy doesn't need an uncle. In my country we haven't much use for a young man whose only assets are his relatives. Billy has made good by his own efforts, sir. He is the inventor and proprietor of the Flying Sphinx motorcycle."

"An experimental machine, I understand. I hope, for Mr. Spencer's sake," said Lord Scroope, politely, "that it may prove—ah—successful."

Mr. Rivington smiled.

"The present model of the Sphinx, though a big advance on the others, is past the experimental stage. Of the first and second models, a quarter of a million have been sold in the States. The plant for the latest, on mass production, is now being laid down. In the company that's being floated I hold a third control—and I'm very thankful that I have. Billy stands to clean up three hundred and fifty thousand dollars on the deal—hard earnings."

"I have not a very good head for figures, Mr. Rivington. Could you translate that into terms of English currency?"

"About seventy thousand pounds," Lord Scroope sat perfectly silent, gazing at Mr. Rivington.

"But the youngster himself is silent. I'm concerned with—not what he's got. However," continued Rivington, looking out of the window as a faint whirling noise was heard below, "I see he's arrived, so I needn't say any more. But I'm very glad to have had this chance to speak for him. Billy isn't good at praising himself."

Billy's card came up, and Billy shortly followed it. He looked at Lord Scroope diffidently.

"I shall be glad to have a few words with you, Mr. Spencer," said Lord Scroope with his most amiable air, "there was a staccato quality about our first meeting, that rendered a mutual understanding difficult."

"The first duty of an uncle," said Mr. Rivington, "is to realize when he's in the way. With your permission, Lord Scroope, I'll go below."

He retired, leaving the two together, and drifted into the sunny morning room overlooking the lawn. In a few moments Lady Scroope came in. Mr. Rivington made himself known to her. In a very short time Lady Scroope had skillfully elicited from Mr. Rivington all the information he had given to her husband, and a good deal more. She bubbled with amusement and sympathy as the enthusiastic Rivington expounded Billy's qualities.

"I had a few words with your nephew, Mr. Rivington, before he went upstairs," she said laughing, "a most magnetic and alluring young man. I tremble to think what his influence may be on my simple-minded husband."

Mr. Rivington, coloring with pleasure, looked admiringly at the little lady, wondering how she came to have a daughter as old as Almee—who at that moment entered the room. Lady Scroope introduced her guest.

"Well!" murmured Mr. Rivington, holding Almee's hand after shaking it and regarding her vivid beauty with the most intense appreciation, "I can understand Billy's anxiety now."

"Do you mean to say," exclaimed Almee, "that Billy is here?"

"He is at present with your father in the library, dear," replied her mother. Almee departed hastily.

"Almee," her mother called after her, "you are on no account to interrupt them."

"I'm going to be there when they come out!" said Almee over her shoulder as she disappeared.

The two elder people looked at each other, and both of them laughed. Mr. Rivington was charmed. Lady Scroope was wholly unlike his preconceived notions of an English peeress. They resumed their conversation and drifted out through the windows to the lawn near the entrance, where stood the Sphinx. The original Sphinx, with pillion-seat de luxe attached.

Ten minutes later Lord Scroope, with a countenance that was positively animated, came toward them across the grass.

"My dear Delicia!" he exclaimed. "I have no objection to saying, even before Mr. Rivington, that William Spencer is a most remarkable young man. Not only has his conduct all through the affair been admirable, but his character appeals to me very greatly. There is more innate honesty, more of the very essence of religion, in that young fellow, than I have yet encountered in anyone of his age."

Mr. Rivington, coloring still more deeply, looked at his lordship with appreciative eyes. Lady Scroope smiled.

"Tony, dear, I have seldom heard you express yourself so warmly; and as a judge of character you have taught me to regard you as infallible. Certainly, from the rather brief interview I had with Mr. Spencer I formed a similar opinion. But do I understand that you have—?"

"Hem," said Lord Scroope, with some slight confusion, "we appear to be moving rather—ah—rapidly. I feel—"

He broke off, apparently at a loss, as Billy and Almee came towards them across the lawn, side by side. There was something Olympian in Billy's aspect and the splendor of his smile. Almee was radiant and glowing. Lord Scroope scarcely recognized in her the pallid and distressed young woman who had returned from Jervaux. It was as though an errand servant of the gods had restored his daughter to him.

"Dad," said Almee. "You've been splendid, dear. And I want to say all the nice things to Billy's uncle, that I haven't had a chance to, yet."

"I hope," said Lord Scroope, wrinkling his brow in perplexity as he and his wife stood in the library some hours later, after the departure of the visitors, "that I have not been too precipitate. Have I committed myself too far, Delicia?"

Lady Scroope pushed her husband gently into an armchair and perched herself on the arm of it.

"If you mean, dear," she said, stroking his hair, "did you definitely accept Billy Spencer as a prospective son-in-law—you certainly did. And a very good thing, too."

"Did I really?" murmured her husband. "I hardly recognize myself today, Delicia. It seems very precipitate. There are so many things to consider—to verify—"

"I haven't the slightest doubt that will be all right. Two of the soundest people I ever came across."

"But what—?"

"What I like about Americans," said Lady Scroope, "when a proposition—that's what they call it, I think—when a proposition is clear, they don't waste time. I like people who don't waste time—it makes life so much less complicated."

"I am certainly conscious of a great access of happiness."

"Yes. Because Almee is so happy. And Almee's happiness is a very infectious quality. Still, at the moment, Tony dear, you are looking a little worried and anxious. Why?"

"The one rift in the lute," said Lord Scroope regretfully, "is this break with the Jervaux household. Family quarrels are always petty and undignified. I fear the affair has alienated Erythea. I hope I did not convey the impression that I disapproved of Alexander's marriage. Really it is an excellent thing for Georgina, and he will have a most worthy wife."

"I," said Lady Scroope, kissing the top of his head, "will make the peace with Erythea. Although she disapproves of my moral character, I am the only person she really listens to. I will go over tomorrow and pave the way. I've already talked that over with Mr. William Spencer," she added, twinkling, "and he will accompany me. I am persuaded he has great influence there. I suggest a double wedding here at Scroope. It will suit Erythea much better than at Jervaux—as things are! Have no fear, Tony. It shall be arranged."

CHAPTER XXVIII

"All's Well—"

"What," said Almee, with a little touch of scorn, "are you looking so frightened about, Georgie dear?"

"I'm not frightened," said Georgina faintly, smoothing her white silk sleeve with a tremulous hand and glancing at the spray of orange-blossoms on the boudoir table. "I'm supremely happy. But—one ought to feel a little frightened, surely? Are not you?"

"Not a bit."

Georgina regarded her cousin with a faintly shocked expression, that changed slowly into a gaze of admiration.

"How perfectly lovely you look, Almee!"

"Yes, don't I," returned Almee simply, inspecting herself in the long mirror. "Isn't Billy lucky!" She suddenly encircled Georgina's waist with her arm. "I'm so glad you're happy, Georgie dear. Everybody's got to be happy today; even Aunt Erythea. In half an hour you and Alexander will stand at the altar. Don't tremble like that. I and Billy will be close to you. Dad will marry all four of us with splendid composure and dignity. There's nothing to be afraid of. Dad is at his best in emergencies like that."

"I do love dignity," said Georgina gratefully.

"Don't say nasty things to me on my wedding day. You'll get all the dignity you want. When you emerge after the wedding breakfast, the carriage with the two fat horses will be waiting for you; it will convey you to the train, and then away for—where did you say you were going?"

"Closemister," said Georgina rapturously. "Alexander is to be inducted as assistant to the prebendary in six weeks time. I was so glad when he suggested we should go at once to the place where later his duties will lie. There, under the shadow of that glorious old cathedral—"

"You'll spend an idyllic, sedate honeymoon," said Almee. "How perfect, dear. Aren't you grateful to me? If it hadn't been for my stunt, you might have missed a whole life's happiness. But Billy and I—"

"Isn't Billy Lucky?"

"You're going through to Harwich on the car, aren't you, dear? Alexander told me—"

"There's Aunt Erythea!" said Almee. "I'm glad mummy induced the old terror to come."

"Who is that with her?"

"My new uncle-in-law, Mr. Rivington. He's a peach! Aunt seems to be getting on with him splendidly. Look at her back! Who's the funny little man that seems half asleep, over by the cedar?"

"My Uncle Joseph," murmured Georgina. "He didn't realize till after we left Jervaux, that I ought to have been at home with him all the time. I don't think he really grasps the position, even now."

"I don't wonder. These professors never do grasp anything," chuckled Almee. "We've beaten Diana and Bertrand. They're to be married in London next week."

"Isn't all this delightful to think of," sighed Georgina, "after the horrors we went through! Did you ever hear what became of that woman you told me about—the wife of the burglar?"

"Never heard a word more of her; I think she got away."

"It all seems like some fearful nightmare now," shuddered her cousin. "As the wife of a future bishop, you'll wipe it off your memory, Georgie, dear. But I never shall! The greatest time I ever had in my life. The joy of living, Georgie!" Lady Scroope suddenly entered the room.

"Children," she said gravely, "in five minutes we start for the chapel."

Almee bolted into her room, followed by her mother.

"Do you see 'em yet?" whispered an apple-cheeked woman eagerly. The red poppies in her bonnet quivered as she raised herself on tiptoe. The staff of the Scroope Towers household was grouped on either side of the great porch, behind the assembled guests.

The apple-cheeked woman was Mrs. Sunning of Ivy cottage, Stanhoe; the only envoy from the Jervaux district. Her eyes sparkled, she clutched grimly to her breast a large bag of rice, a barbarous custom still permitted at Scroope.

Almee and Billy suddenly emerged from the porch at speed, followed closely by Alexander and Georgina, amid cheers, flower-petals and confetti. Mrs. Sunning, with a shrill cry, opened her batteries.

Alexander and Georgina, swerving to the right, climbed into the waiting carriage. Billy, escaping through the shower of rice, shot past to the car.

"Beat it!" he cried to the chauffeur, and caught Almee by the hand. Together they scudded on foot down the drive.

The guests paused in astonishment. Lady Scroope, her eyelashes sparkling, laughed gently. Aunt Erythea jutted an inquiring nose round the pillars.

The bride and bridegroom, having made good speed for two hundred yards, turned into a clump of laurels that efficiently hid the Flying Sphinx. Billy snatched up a blue cloak that lay athwart the saddle.

"On with it!" cried Billy, glowing. In a twinkling Almee donned the wrap; as Billy bestrode the saddle she threw herself upon the pillion and her arms about his waist.

"Ready—partner!" Billy said. "Let her rip!" panted Almee joyously.

The Sphinx hummed swiftly along the park road and swung left onto the highway.

"Hold tight!" The Sphinx breasted the long rise at sixty miles an hour. The wind screamed past them.

Almee laughed aloud. Leaning forward from the pillion, she pressed the smallest, soft round kiss on the back of Billy's neck, as they disappeared in a cloud of smelt dust.

Far East Making Strides In Development in Sports; Western Prowess Challenged

NEW YORK, March 21.—A new "oriental menace" is facing the western world.

Far from having any warlike significance, however, the cause of "apprehension" this time is based upon a growing development of athletic prowess in the Far East which threatens to challenge the supremacy of American and European stars in various branches of sport.

Comparatively little is realized in this country of the tremendous forward strides which athletics have taken in the past decade in the orient, especially in China, Japan and the Philippines, our island possession. These three nations, banded together in the Far Eastern Athletic Association, the major oriental sport governing body, have taken the initiative in putting recreational activities on its present high plane.

As the result of progress which has been unostentatious but none the less effective, the rest of the athletic world is beginning to focus its attention on this Far Eastern development. Right now particular interest is being manifested in the 1923 Far Eastern games, a biennial affair modelled along Olympic lines. The meet this year is the sixth since 1913 and will be held in Osaka, Japan, beginning May 21. It promises to witness a calibre of performance comparing favorably with the best in this country and Europe, and in the Far East it is looked upon as a preliminary step toward real representation from that part of the world in the Paris Olympics of 1924.

Conditions peculiar to the orient undoubtedly will preclude the possibility of Far Eastern peoples competing generally on an even footing with their Caucasian rivals, but high class talent in many branches of activity is being produced as a result of systematic training and encouragement. As an example, the list of track and field stars, according to latest reports, includes several 10-second sprinters, while unusual proficiency is being developed in such sports as swimming, tennis and boxing.

Proof of the invasion of western standards also is shown in the program for the Far Eastern meet, which will include competition in volleyball, basketball, rugby football and baseball.

Women, too, are following the leadership of their American and European sisters in taking a more active part in athletics. Tennis and swimming events for feminine participants form a part of the international program.

American leadership and principles have been largely responsible for the athletic awakening in the Far East. Interest first was stimulated in the Philippines, where natives proved eager and apt pupils and has spread throughout the orient.

One of the outstanding figures in this development was Elwood S. Brown of New York, now executive officer of the newly launched National Amateur Athletic Federation, but who for years stimulated athletic activity in the Far East as a Y. M. C. A. worker. With others he was instrumental in staging the first Far Eastern games in 1913, at Manila, and bringing China and later Japan into the Far Eastern Athletic Association, Siam and Malaya also were induced to become members of this association, but the outbreak of the world war forced both to withdraw from active participation.

"Reports I have received from the Far East indicate that this year's games will be the most successful ever held," Mr. Brown declared in discussing the athletic situation in the orient. "China and Japan and the Philippines all promise to have strong teams in the field. Keen rivalry exists among these nations, and they are anxious to develop talent which will be worth sending to the Olympics at Paris."

"The city of Osaka is building a big concrete stadium for the events and expects to handle average daily crowds of 20,000."

PEACH CROP MAY BE SPARED, JOE RUSHING CLAIMS

That many of the peaches and plums have not been killed by the recent freezes, is the encouraging information given this morning by Joe Rushing, orchardist. Mr. Rushing says that barring another freeze or big frost, this section ought to make a good crop of both fruit. Apples and cherries are also safe thus far.
"Of course," Mr. Rushing explained, "we cannot tell how much the trees will shed or what the fruit has to go through with yet, but at this time I am feeling pretty good over the outlook."

Theses of Communist Program Entered in Hearing in Michigan

(By the Associated Press)
ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 21.—Extracts from "theses" and resolutions adopted by the third world congress and promulgated by the Internationale at Moscow in 1921, were read to the jury in the trial of William Z. Foster, charged with violating the Michigan law against criminal syndicalism. The state alleged that the Moscow Internationale was the governing body of the communists and was committed to a program of force.
The "theses" described in detail how the communists should operate in countries like England where the party has a legal existence, and then in those countries forbidding it, as in the United States where illegal organizations are in existence.

Europe bought more than 22,000,000 worth of American products in the fiscal year of 1922, or well over half of America's total exports to the entire world.

In 1846 patents for a compound locomotive were taken out, but only since 1890 has this type become popular in the country.

With Pitching Staff He Has, Connie Should Figure in Race

(By Norman E. Brown.)

Ed Rommel.
Bob Hasty.
Rollie Naylor.
Bryan Harris.

These four pitchers, wearing the Athletics uniform, may have much to say in the American league race the coming season. Which means, of course, that Connie Mack's team as a whole will have considerable to say also.

Despite handicaps these four pitchers lugged the Mackmen out of last place last season after the team had roosted there since 1915. Those handicaps apparently are being overcome, judging by the way the Macks look down at Montgomery, Ala.

Last year Mack's infield was not satisfactory. Connie got better results at first by shifting Doc Johnston to the bench and putting Zip Hauser, Milwaukee star, in his place. It was Hauser's first season as a big league regular, however. Now he has a part of a season behind him.

Connie finally strengthened second by benching Scheer and putting Jimmie Dykes there. Short was well taken care of by Chic Golloway but third wasn't much comfort to Connie. Joe Dugan was discontented until he was traded. The purchase of Sammy Hale for $75,-

000 last winter, is believed to have plugged the last gap in the inner defense. This change alone ought to increase the effectiveness of Connie's hurlers.

Weak Spot Afield

—The outfield situation wasn't exactly worry-free, either. Tillie Walker hit like a fiend but his fielding dropped a bit. Tillie is getting old. "Bing" Miller slugged at a merry clip and fielded brilliantly. But Welch, while fielding well, couldn't hit at even a fair gait.

Connie hopes that he can improve Welch's hitting and find a youngster to relieve Walker if the vet finds the strain telling too much on him.

The outfield, as it stands, however, is a fairly capable one. The worst defect in the Mack organization last season was the infield.

In addition to his four star hurlers, Rommel, Hasty, Naylor and Harris, Connie has two other youngsters he believes will complete his staff this year. One is Bill Ogden, a righthander, and the other is Heinach, a southpaw. Ogden broke into 15 games last season and while he won but one game and lost four he showed that he has the makings. Heinach did not have a chance to show his stuff last season. Reports of him, however, are good. He looks good this spring, which is something.

Perkins Valuable Asset

—And no small part of the success of Mack's young hurling staff rests on the firm shoulder of Cy Perkins. He is the proper man to handle such a crew. He is young, full of pep and with a keen, brain, calm disposition and noodle-ful of baseball.

There's no pennant dangling before the eyes of the Mackmen but they have an air of confidence this spring that bespeaks trouble for the contenders and alleged contenders. The Mackmen are set to break up many winning streaks and pennant spurts of rival clubs. Put that in your easter bonnet.

Many changes have been made in the executive force at Washington during the Harding administration and it is generally thought that this is caused from the failure of cabinet officers to let the president win his game of golf.

Newspaper representatives have been following Harding's caddy for some time now and surely it would be worth a story if the president should win a game.

It is being seriously considered in the interest of the president that a challenge will be issued to John D. Rockefeller, he being one of the oldest in the game.

We feel certain that the scores of some of his games will be published after the next presidential nomination but until that time political heads feel that the publication of the results of some of the games might be detrimental campaign literature.

The wife had called her husband's office and he was fond of joking so the reply, "this is the smartest husband in town speaking," to her query. She immediately hung up, begging to be excused in that she had been given the wrong number.

Emmanuel, her fourth husband, had just been placed to rest.

Poor, Poor Dear. It is a hard blow for you to be made a widow again, the consoling preacher quipped but added that there is a Comforter for you.

"What is his address," the poor widow exclaimed.

A pretty girl had fallen overboard. Her lover leaned over the side of the boat. As she came to the surface, he said: "Give me your hand."

"Please ask papa," she murmured as she sank for the third time.

The wife, whose husband died from poisoning, can boast that her course in chemistry was not in vain.

Life is half spent before we know what it is.

ENGLAND WANTS TO TAX HER GAMBLERS

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON.—The consistently hard up British government, always seeking fresh ways and means to replenish its coffers, is said to be casting covetous eyes on the huge sums of money known to be changing hands constantly in England through betting transactions.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer a short time ago requested the quiet island of Jersey and Guernsey and the Isle of Man, to contribute much more generously to the expense of the empire than has been their habit, and it is not believed these sources will refuse. But something like $500,000,000 a year is lost and won by British bettors, according to the estimate, and a good round tax on this sum would produce a tidy revenue.

All would be relatively easy for the treasury were it not for the disconcerting fact that to tax betting would legalize the practice, a step which would create an uproar from all sorts and conditions of people throughout the country.

There are nearly 30,000 bookmakers in England who handle this $500,000,000 each year, not only on horse races, but on football games and dog races. The betting fever prevades not alone the big clubs in London, but practically every factory in England. It is even said that in some factories intimidation is resorted to in order to get girls to bet, and their refusal so to do sometimes makes their lives unbearable.

It is argued that the licensing of bookmakers, the abolition of touts, and the adoption of the totalizer would greatly curtail gambling and abolish many of the present abuses, and that a bill in the Commons along these lines would be well supported.

Cold light is, as yet, an undiscovered principle.

Pruning Young Trees.

By D. C. Mooring,
Extension Horticulturist, A. and M. College.

Judging from the general interest in the state as a result of inquiry and observation it is very evident that there are a large number of young fruit trees being set out in the state this spring.

The pruning of trees while young is very essential in order to train them properly. Fruit trees should be headed low in this state as the trunks are less apt to be injured by sun scald, the wind will not affect them as badly and it will be much more convenient and economical to carry on the common orchard practices with a low headed tree.

In the case of a single switch or unbranched tree having been set, cut back until there is a switch left eighteen to twenty inches high if the fruit is a stone fruit such as the peach, and leave the switch twenty-four to thirty inches in the case of pome fruits such as the apple.

Where the trees already are branched when set, these same heights will apply by cutting back the side branches, leaving about four branches. If the branches are very small leave about two buds on each branch, but where they are a fair size cut back in proportion to their strength, but somewhere in the neighborhood of one-half to two thirds should be cut off each branch.

In selecting the four main limbs try to get them distributed well around the trunk as well as up and down, so that there will not be two limbs coming out at the same place on the trunk.

DO YOU KNOW WHY THE GEAR-SHIFT IS DIFFERENT?

The design of Dodge Brothers gear-shift takes into consideration the natural inclinations of the driver.

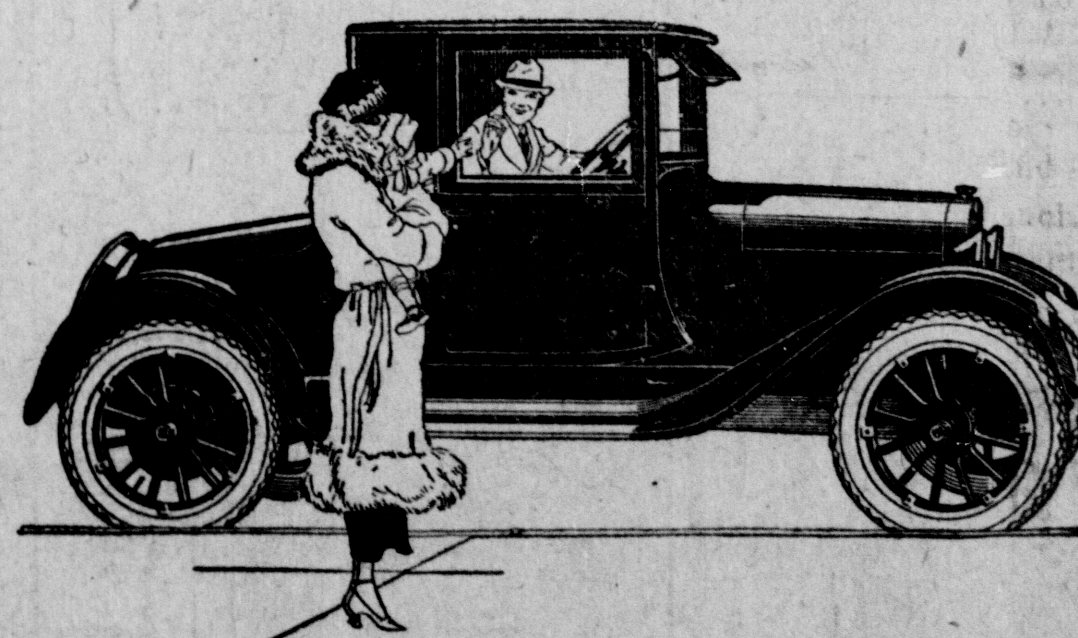

To start, you throw the lever forward. To reverse, you pull the lever backward. And when the car is running in high gear—which is about ninety per cent of the time—the lever is in a forward position, out of the way, where it does not interfere with passengers, robes, or luggage.

Moreover, the transmission, developed and patented by Dodge Brothers, is so designed that the countershaft—used in intermediate speeds and in reverse—is disconnected when the car is in high. There are no gears in mesh. Power is transmitted directly from clutch to rear axle.

This exclusive feature prevents the loss of power through friction, reduces gear-box noises and eliminates a vast amount of wear.

That is why the gear-shift of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is different.
